PRES. HARDING DEAD

Death Comes Very Suddenly Last Night In San Francisco To Chief Executive Just Recovering From Recent Illness Contracted on Alaskan Trip

President Had Been Ill From Poisoning Incurred on Alaskan Trip—Wife With Him at End, 7:30 p. m.—Harding 57 Years Old

COOLIDGE SWORN IN AS PRESIDENT AT 2:47 THIS MORNING

SAN FRANCISCO, August 2.—President Harding died here at 7:30 o'clock tonight by a stroke of apoplexity after having almost won his fight against broncho-pneumonia and other complications.

The end came suddenly and without warning while Mrs. Harding, truly faithful until the death, sat by his bedside reading to him. Two nurses and Dr. Sawyer were the only other persons in the room and there was no time for last word from the nation's leader either to his wife or to the republic which he served.

A shudder shook his frame weakened by seven days' illness and worn by a trip of seventy-five hundred miles from Washington to Alaska and return as far as this city. He collapsed and it was over.

Mrs Harding only had time to rush to the door and call, "Find Dr. Boone and the others quick," meaning the physicians. Mrs. Harding was brave and strong after the end as she had been faithful and strong to the end, although she is not strong and is still affected by her illness of nearly a year ago. She declared that she would not break down and she did not break down in the hour of her greatest grief.

Interment at a date to be determined later, will undoubtedly be at Marion, Ohio, where Warren G. Harding struggled determinedly forward, first as a newspaper publisher, then as lieutenant-governor and then as United States senator, through to the highest office in the gift of the American people.

News of the president's death was flashed at 7:51 p. m., as soon as a statement could be prepared

Within a few minutes telegrams were sent to Calvin C. Coolidge, vice-president of the United States, upon whom now devolves the duties and responsibilities of government.

The best explanation of the death of the chief executive may be found in these words by Lieutenant-Commander J. T. Boone, assistant to Dr. Sawyer as the president's physician:

"The president had a most splendid afternoon. When I left the room for dinner I commented, 'doesn't he look splendid' Then all at once he just went like that"—Dr. Boone snapped his fingers—"Just like that something snapped; that's all."

The last words the president spoke an instant before the apopletic shock came to a brain that was tired, Mrs. Harding had paused from reading Her husband glanced up. raised his hand and said: "That's good. Go on. Read some more."

The confusion which reigned for some little time immediately after the news became known died down after the capable hands of the assistants and advisers of the executive had taken over the reins.

Body Leave Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO, August 3.—The body of President Harding will leave San Francisco on a special train at about 7 o'clock Friday evening and go direct to Washington by way of Reo, Odgen, Cheyenne, Omaha and Chicago.

The car will be lighted at night and at all times two soldiers and two sailors, part of a naval and military guard of sixteen enlisted men, will stand at attention guarding the casket.

The body will not be taken from the hotel except to go directly to the train. There will be only the simplest private ceremony at the hotel before the body is moved.

Wilson Not Told News

WASHINGTON, August 3.—Word of the death of President Harding was withheld last night from former President Wilson who had retired before the news reached Washington.

Mrs. Wilson expressed profound regret when told of the event but said that because of Mr. Wilson's state she would not awaken him.

Father Almost Prostrate

MARION, Ohio August 3.—Dr. George T. Harding, aged father of the president, is almost prostrate at the death of his son. A messenger went to the home of Dr. Harding, who had retired for the night, and who was only awakened after several minutes.

COOLIDGE IS SWORN IN AS NEW PRESIDENT

Oath of Office Given New Executive at 2 47 a m by His Father—Coolidge Is Conservative Man of Puritan Blood

WON RENOWN AS GOVERNOR OF MASSACHUSETTS

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON Aug 3—Calvin C Coolidge took the oath of office as president of the United States at Plymouth Vt at 2 47 a m today The new president was sworn into his father who is a notary public and at whose home Mr Coolidge is visiting The text and pledge of the oath as prescribed by the constitution were telephoned from the White House

Calvin Coolidge twenty ninth man elected vice president in the United States and fourth from the state of Massachusetts was born in the tiny town of Plymouth Vt July 4 1872

Running in his veins by direct line are is the blood of the Mayflower pilgrims From them he inherited a predominant Puritan respect for law and order such as characterized his conduct as governor of Massachusetts in refusing to temporize with leaders of the Boston police strike

Silent reserved uncommunicative almost to the point of brusqueness he rose to national political eminence in 1919 when he was mentioned for the Republican nomination for president

When the nomination went to Harding Coolidge was first and there was no second in the contest for vice president

During his political life Coolidge ran for various offices state and municipal total of 17 times He won every race and only once was the fight close that occasion being in his second contest for the Massachusetts State Legislature when he received a plurality of only 63 votes

Born to life on the farm during his boyhood Coolidge occupied himself doing chores and helping out in his father's general store

He attended the little red school house at Plymouth From there he went to the old Black Rock River Academy at Ludlow Vt to prepare himself to enter college He had virgin hopes of reckons so high for the family farm and store were not over productive and money in the Coolidge family was scarce

In 1891 however enough considerably older than the average freshman because scanty means had prevented him leaving home he entered Amherst

In 1897 he was admitted to the Massachusetts bar and began the practice of law at Northampton Following two terms as mayor of that city two as city solicitor two in the state legislature four in the senate three as lieutenant governor and two as governor his political star shot into the national constellation

In person Coolidge typifies the New England gentleman He has probably never slapped a man on the back He is quiet to the point of taciturnity in his speech and possesses a twinkling eye and a mouth and chin that with all his kindly smile are as firm and inflexible as Plymouth Rock itself

In 1906 he married Miss Grace Goodhue then a teacher in the Clarke School Northampton Two sons have been born to them At the time of his election as vice president the couple lived in a rented home at Northampton for which they paid $ 2 a month rental

He is said to own no real estate and has never owned an automobile

COOLIDGISMS

Injecting the rule of law is accepting the sword of force

All true Americans are working for each other

Observance of law is the greatest solvent of public ills

Either the people must own the government or the government will own the people

There will be can be no escape form the obligation of the nations to bear the burdens of civilization but the weak must be aided to become strong

Our free republic rests on government is a product of a great people

Look well to the hearthstone there is all hope for America lies

While the law is observed the progress of civilization will continue when such observance ceases chaos and the ancient night of despotism will come again

The most obvious place to begin economy is by eliminating the extravagance of government itself.

WARREN G. HARDING

By Associated Press

Warren G Harding brought to the Presidency an infinite patience and kindness in dealing with public questions and men which enabled him to handle the problems of government without the stress and worry which had handicapped many of his predecessors

Whatever else historians may say of him there probably will be little dispute that few chief executives came to office in peace time facing problems more complex in their nature or greater in number All international affairs were unsettled as never before with many principal settlements of the Great War still to be effectuated At home the work of reconstruction had only just begun with business depressed agriculture prostrate and unemployment general

How Mr Harding measured up to the task before him must be left to the historian but his friends said that coming to the Presidency as he did with an open mind a desire for counsel and an intimate knowledge of the processes of government acquired in his services in the Senate he was the type of man needed for the job at such a time

Preaching upon every occasion the doctrine of Americanism he set his face resolutely against Entangling Alliances While thus adhering to what he was pleased to term the principles of the founding fathers he nevertheless lent the moral assistance of the government in the efforts to heal up the wounds of the world

That influence was once declared by him to be not silent though it was in the main in effecting the settlements of many vexing world questions His chief contribution was the Washington Arms Conference at which the principal powers covenanted to limit the size of their navies and thus left from the weary peoples the burden of maintaining the race for naval supremacy

Insisted on American Rights

Along with the proffer of counsel in effecting world settlements went an insistance that American rights be recognized In polished phrase but with a directness of expression that was not to be misconstrued the world was given to understand from the very first of the Harding administration that the United States freely respecting the rights of the other nations asked for herself only that to which she was entitled in simple justice and that she could accept nothing less

While in his dealings with Congress Mr Harding preferred the role of counsellor rather than dictator he speedily removed any doubt that his gift of persuasion denied to lack of power once he had chided a committee that he told Congress that policies Democratic legislation either should carry the indorsement of elections or be postponed and when the legislation put aside his advice he promptly vetoed the bill they sent him

His tenacity of purpose was further exemplified in his command pounding for economy in public expenditures and in urging in the first message that Congress pass the merchant marine bill with its war profiteering provisions which the operation of the war built commercial fleet had become upon the Treasury His greatest single effort in the field of domestic legislation was in behalf of this measure

Not infrequently Mr Harding was called upon to play the role of peace maker in governmental affairs He intervened in a dispute between Congress and the Treasury as to the form general tax revision was to take and the program he approved was carried out in the main with a reduction of more than half a billion in the nations tax burden

Likewise his counsel settled the long controversy between the House and Senate on the question of American valuation in the tariff law He proposed in its place a flexible tariff arrangement under which the Tariff Commission was given authority with his approval to increase or lower rates within prescribed limitations Upon signing the bill the President declared it constituted the greatest tariff reform in American history

Born in Ohio, 1865

Mr Harding came of hardy pioneer stock He was born at Blooming Grove Morrow County Ohio November 2 1865 the son of a country doctor George T Harding Like most country boys he went to country school between morning and night chores and later attended college at Iberia Ohio He tried school teaching for a term but having had a smell of printers ink while sticking type for his college paper the lure drew him into the newspaper field

His family meantime had moved to Marion in an adjoining county where he obtained his first newspaper job and where his life interests were centered thereafter Mr Harding's ambition was to become a publisher and it was realized at the age of 19 when he bid in the Marion Star at a sheriff's sale The paper was purchased under heavy mortgage and his friends have often said that the struggles and hardships which were his in making this paper a success had much to do in fashioning his character and developing a broad tolerance which were to characterize his career

Whatever his other attainments Mr Harding's greatest pride was in his profession and accomplishments and training as printer editor and publisher Not did the interests and exacting duties of his high office serve to dull his delight in following about a composing room On his first trip back home after his inauguration he went to the Star office pulled off his coat roll up his sleeves lighted a chew of tobacco and helped make up the paper His boyish charm was a printers ink and ways in a people

As his ambition had carried him in to the ranks of publishers so his fancy took him into the ranks of politics from the first his sentiment pursuits and his assistance upon the stump and in the field of sport Jumped while a reporter on a Democratic paper he brought home a ribbon awarded from his chief who held it to be inconsistent for a writer on a Democratic paper to so prominently display the symbol of his Republicanism

Was Ardent Republican

The future President's ability as a stump speaker won him early recognition from his local party leaders Marion county then was in the Democratic column and he undertook to switch it to the Republican party but his first effort at office on his party ticket result in a defeat, though he command an unexpected vote

Mr Hardings first political office was that of Ohio State Senator to which he was elected at the age of 34 He served two terms and later was elected Lieutenant Governor of his state In 1910 he sought the governorship but was defeated Four years later he was elected to the United States Senate where he served six years much of the time as a member of the important Foreign Relations Committee From this place he was elevated to the Presidency the first Senator to be elected Chief Executive

Just as his years of political service had met William McKinley to whom his friends have most often likened him and with whom he had a somewhat predominant passion for public affairs and personality Friendship sprang up between the two men Mr Harding also was elected in later days to Theodore Roosevelt Senators Lodge and Penrose and they both in his party councils Each President was a life long Baptist and was a trustee of his home church in Marion He also had been a member of the Elk and Moose fraternities for years and after his election as President he became a thirty second degree Mason and a Shriner

Golf was his favorite recreation but he also liked to fish although his opportunities for that sport were limited after he came to the White House He played hard and possessed the faculty of putting all his worries behind him during his recreation hours.

A THOUGHT

Blessed is he that considereth the poor; the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble.—Ps. 41:1.

Then gently scan your brother man,
Still gentler, sister woman;
Though they may gang a gennin' wrang,
To step aside is human.
—Burns.

DON'T CALL US MOUNTAINEERS

Writers of other sections, particularly newspaper men from Western and Central Kentucky, use the term "mountaineer" like the Darwinists speak of the Neanderthal man. Any resident of this the Appalachian, mountain section is so designated when his name unfortunately gets into the city papers.

There is an implied reproach in the word since it calls to mind a strange, hermit-like creature, one that defies all laws, particularly those for the enforcement of prohibition. Residents of other mountain sections are not called mountaineers, at least not to the same extent as the people here. Middlesboro is a mountain city as are the other towns in this section and we protest in being called mountaineers, particularly by dwellers of other sections.

It is not just to place persons of certain sections or avocations in a class unless indeed there is such a marked difference in them that would warrant such a discrimination. It is true that our lives and characters are influenced, to a certain degree, by geographical environment but there is no need to make the difference felt by imposing class names.

That the resident of the mountain section has as good a brain, that his morals are as strict as those of other sections has been proved many times. Mountains, ever a natural barrier to progress, retard his education and general development, but do not make him a member of a separate race of men.

Other sections of the country are made up largely of a mixed foreign population. It is in these mountains only that the descendants of the original English settlers are found in all their racial purity.

POLITICS IN THE BACK-GROUND

That is obscure, forgotten. Shakespeare made one of his characters say "one touch of nature makes the whole world kin."

For as long a period of twenty-four hours, men and women, boys, girls, stood eagerly before the bulletin boards scanned their contents, hailed the news boys, eagerly reading the headlines, and what was printed under them.

In their minds, the eyes of multiplied millions were focused on a room in the Palace hotel in the far away city of San Francisco. In that room there was lying on a bed a patient, a number of distinguished physicians were assembled in consultation, the devoted wife of the sick man acting as "head nurse."

The man is President of the United States. His name is Warren G Harding. For the once his politics were forgotten. Democrats and Republicans alike were hoping for the quick recovery of the afflicted man. Devout prayers were directed to a throne of grace in behalf of the afflicted President.

The Atlantic Constitution expressed the devout will and wish of the whole people when it said and had printed in its issue of yesterday morning: "The people of the nation with one accord will wish for President Harding a speedy recovery."

The same paper says, "few, if any, executives have been personally more popular while serving as President of the United States than is President Harding. He is big hearted, generous, fair, and regardless of political or factional differences of individuals, is a man, a man who holds the esteem of all."

What more, what better could be said of a President, said by one who has been more of his staunch political opponents?

At the hour this is written the news from the room of the sick room inspires confidence and hope, and prayers and thanksgiving that the worst is past, that he is on the road to recovery, and in due time will be at his desk in the White House. That was pleasing to all readers irrespective of party and affiliations.—Journal-Tribune.

Bills and other advertising matter on street posts are unsightly and unnecessary. There seems to be no limit here as to the number or quality of these that may be posted and they are never removed by the advertiser. It is understood that a city ordinance has been passed prohibiting this practice but if this is the case it is not being enforced.

Weeds have been cut on the vacant property adjoining the National bank building, allowing bench loungers a view of the street. It is hoped that property owners in other business places will follow this example.

ONE PLACE WHERE A DOLLAR BUYS MORE'N ENOUGH

Edgewood Road Defective

Editor Daily News:—The asphalt paving on Edgewood road, laid only two years ago, and that on Dorchester which has been down but a short time, begins to show signs of failure. Considering the high cost of these improvements, it looks like the City should take steps to have more permanent material used in street building in the future. Both concrete and brick are far more lasting than asphalt, making more satisfactory roadways. Any workman can repair either of these kinds of paving, while an expert is required to patch asphalt.

No matter what kind of material is used in street construction, property holders should be protected by some kind of a guarantee of the permanency of the work. Specifications for street construction in many cities contain these clauses:

"The contractor shall guarantee the work done by him to be, and to remain in good order for a period of five years after the date of acceptance by the city . . . ."

"The contractor shall deposit with the City Treasurer an amount equal to five per cent of the total cost of improvement, to be retained by the city for a term of five years. This to be applied on repairs, if contractor fails to make repairs necessary, after reasonable notice."

These clauses should be incorporated in all future street contracts let by the city of Middlesboro, on the principle that streets may have defects when constructed that are not apparent when the work is accepted, but show up after being traveled over for a year or two.

Neither of the above named streets have been subjected to especially heavy traffic. In what condition will the asphalt streets now being built, be in five years from now, where traffic is heavy?

Copyright 1925 - NEA Service Inc.

LETTER FROM MRS. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON TO ALICE HAMILTON

My dear Daughter:

I am sending this letter by Karl to you and he will be able to answer all the questions about Leslie that you will ask.

Leslie, may dear, has not written you because she has not been able to write to any one.

Five weeks ago she had a bad automobile accident and since then she has not been herself in mind or body. I have been with her all the time and your father has been here almost every week. She seems to be getting better physically, but her mind is not normal. She just lies in bed, the most patient and sweetest girl you have ever known, but she takes no interest in anything or in anybody. She does exactly as we tell her, but nothing on her own initiative.

On account of the accident she lost her baby, and this is what is preying on her mind.

Poor Jack is almost beside himself. I have never seen greater devotion than his to Leslie, particularly as she does not seem to mind whether he is with her or not, and it is breaking his heart.

My dear child, you must not be too "slangy" among those English folks. I do not blame that young Englishman for thinking you are a flopper, as he called it. You know that you do not act that way at home. Of course, I can see with your exhuberant spirits what a temptation it would be to shock the staid minds of the English people you meet. I hope you will not be too boydenish, for remember that you have a duty to your country to perform. You must not allow the English men and women to think that our American girls are one whit behind their own in refinement and breeding.

The other day Leslie had a little flicker of interest. It was when I told her that Karl was sailing this week. She said she wished I would get those pearl beads that you gave her when she was married and send them over to you by Karl. She remarked she would probably not wear them for a long time and that they would be so beautiful on you. I was delighted that she had this interest in something, and greatly disappointed when, the next day, she seemed to have forgotten all about her request.

However, when Karl comes I am going to suggest that he take the beads to you. But you must be very careful of them, my dear, for Jack says he has never known Leslie to be fond of anything as she is of those beads. I looked at them this morning, and they are perfectly beautiful—the finest imitations I have ever known. So nearly perfect are they that when I laid them beside my own necklace of real pearls I could not see any difference.

I wish you would try to get another string like them over there. I would like to give some to Beatrice Grimshaw for a wedding present.

Karl will be here tomorrow and he probably will bring you some surprising news. I am not going to put it in this letter.

It is not improbable if Leslie is well enough that I may bring her over in time to come home with you this fall. I am nearly mad with anxiety over her condition, for, Alice, you know, I would much rather see her dead than to lose her mind.

There, I had not intended to voice my fears about her even to you, but having done so, I will let the letter go.

Be a good girl, Alice dear, and remember you mother loves and trusts you.

Will keep you posted by cable if there is a turn for the worse in Leslie's condition.

Lovingly,
Your Mother

TOMORROW—Mrs. Hamilton to her husband—Leslie's sudden recovery.

THE BLUFFER
* * By Berton Braley * *

As a kid he was scared of the other boys,
The smaller ones and the bigger,
Yet he faced 'm all with a seeming poise
And fought 'm with sturdy vigor;
He was scared of the girls, but he made a bluff
Of courage, and stuck right to it,
And got away with it well enough,
So nobody ever knew it.

And as he grew to a man's estate
He was ever with fear athrob,
He was scared of Fate,
And scared of his daily job;
But somehow or other he played the game
And steadily through it,
He was scared and frightened, just the same
There's nobody ever knew it!

He bluffed his friends and he bluffed his foes
With his glorious dissembling,
And nobody guessed his endless throes
Of doubt and of fear and trembling;
He died with brave words on his breath,
Scared blue, but he wouldn't show it!
He gallantly bluffed through life and death,
A hero who didn't know it!

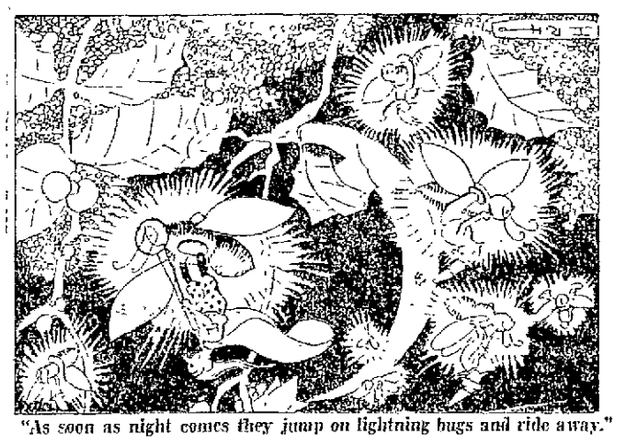
NO. 1—PEE WEE LAND



"As soon as night comes they jump on lightning bugs and ride away."

The Pee Wees are first cousins to the Little Peezers and live in Pee Wee Land, under the burdocks.

One day the Fairy Queen received a letter. It said:

"Dear Queen:

"Could you and would you please to help me.

"My subjects have learned to ride on lightning bugs and since then I haven't had one peaceful minute.

"They say 'uneasy lies the head that wears a crown,' and I'll have you know I believe it.

"I never know where any of my subjects are at night. The only place I know is where they are not. That place is Pee Wee Land.

"As soon as night comes they jump on lightning bugs and ride away, the whole badoodle of them.

"And the trouble they get into is something fierce.

"Tiny Toe fell into a custard pie sitting on Mrs. Brown's window sill to cool. And although he's a good swimmer, the custard set and he did, too!

"Wee Willie got stuck on some fly paper—or his clothes did—and the only way his friends could save him was to peel him out of his clothes and bring him home the way he was.

"Could you—would you please to help me?

"Your faithful subject,
"Snookums,
"King of the Pee Wees."

"Nancy and Nick!" called the Fairy Queen, smiling. "It seems to me that this is a job for you and your magic shoes."

SHADOW OF PERPLEXITY TRAILS QUIET IN IRELAND

DUBLIN CASTLE WHOSE BUTT POCKED WALLS SHOW EVIDENCE OF FORMER REVOLUTIONARY DAYS

DUBLIN Aug 2—Crimson mingled with suspicion is an outstanding characteristic in Dublin as the general election draws near in the Free State On the streets in parks in clubs and cafes the Irish refuse to discuss politics adding the significant statement that 'you never can tell to whom you are a stranger Once convinced you are a stranger especially in America they throw off their mantle of caution and speak with a sincerity that everybody would admire

Return of a Free State majority in the Dail would appear to mean better days for Ireland A Republican victory on the other hand may bring renewed hostilities loss of life and property and return of the British troops

Utter despair seems to prevail

Even in a thousand years this country will be no better one wealthy Loyalist said It's quiet now but that's just a lull before the storm There'll always fight here This country is cursed to be a subject of ridicule throughout the world

Dublin is now enjoying a period of quietude it has not seen in years waiting patiently for the election which is to be held in August A poll of 25 random opinions as to the outcome of the election gives the Free State a slight edge with 14 to 11

An American walking along O Connell (Sackville) street the main thoroughfare would hardly call Dublin a 'health resort Here and there are ruins of government buildings—bare gray walls enclosing heaps of crumbled stone, twisted ironwork and debris

Continuing along the street there are several private buildings totally wrecked, while others show that they had been subjected to a fierce machine gun fire Here and there are piles of sandbags that had been used for temporary fortifications

Bridges fences and buildings are decorated with such war crys as The Republic Still Lives Women Dared on while Praying in Prison and Up I R A and Fight Efforts had been made to eradicate these slogans with some success but the words murder and fight still remain

Flags are conspicuous by their absence The Free State standard flies over the Dail Society building formerly the Royal Dublin Society The Orange white and green can also be seen at the barracks But not a single home store or public place cares to fly the national emblem

The streets are continually crowded with the green uniformed soldiers of the Free State army Nearly everybody will admit that the soldiers are well behaved and no source of annoyance to civilians Their youth is another feature many being only 16 years old

Americans bump into an old acquaintance in Dublin—John Barleycorn All hotels have bars, while saloons can be found in nearly every corner with one or two in between

Yet there is very little drunkenness in Dublin Arrested on the streets for drunkenness would mean a minimum sentence of 30 days as no fines are imposed A Republican selling liquor to a drunken man or selling him enough to get drunk is dealt with severely In addition to losing his license forever a prison sentence would be imposed A dry movement in Ireland is hardly in embryo

The Irish drink little water Not one cafe will serve water unless asked When an American asked one waitress for water first she immediately recognized him as such

Ah she exclaimed 'you come from Yankeeland where they serve you water first!'

She explained that she had worked in a restaurant in Chicago

There is an American soda fountain doing a thriving business while serving Yankee sundries to the natives It is operated by an Italian

The few visitors that dare to go to Ireland are chiefly from the United Kingdom There are very few Americans in Dublin The cafes and theaters are never crowded the historical buildings are closed to the public while St Patricks cathedral and other noted institutions are in dire financial distress

Outstanding in the great struggle that has disrupted Ireland for years is the unique position occupied by the 2000 or more Jews in Dublin

Being neither Catholics nor Protestant and not interested in their strife the Jews are an recognized neutral ground and have enjoyed complete immunity from the ravages of civil war

As one faction has always posed as representing law and order, while the other side has always contended that it is fighting for an ideal neither could consistently interfere with the Jews Casualties among the Jews when Dublin was a battlefield are almost unknown

Jews in Dublin might be termed as stragglers from that great army that migrated to America from Eastern Europe The coming generation however will be native Irish Jews

Mr. Shaver is saving $73 a year by smoking "BULL" DURHAM and so can you

2710 E. 76th Place
Chicago, Ill.

The American Tobacco Co.
111 Fifth Avenue
New York City

Gentlemen:

I have always smoked "Bull" Durham, and your advertisements in the Chicago papers, making a strong point of the saving idea, caught my eye. I want to tell you of a little experiment I have just made.

I usually smoke about a package of "Bull" Durham a day, which costs me ten cents.

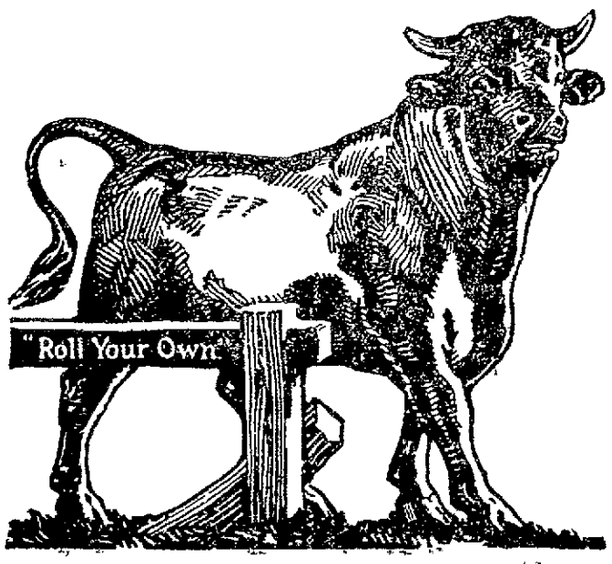
For a week I switched to the tailor made cigarettes and used two packages a day, costing me thirty cents. Figuring this up covering a period of a year, "Bull" Durham cost me $36.50 as against $109.50 for the other kind.

This means a saving of $73.00, which never occurred to me until I saw your ad.

Assuring you that I will always "roll my own" I am

Sincerely,
Sam Shaver

May 25, 1923.



With each package you receive a book of 24 leaves of RIZLA+ the finest cigarette paper in the world.

You will be amazed to see how the use of "Bull" Durham tobacco will cut down the cost of your smoking. Remember "Bull" gives you 50 cigarettes of the best flavor and quality for 10 cents.

This means easily a saving for the average smoker of from $1 to $1.50 a week—$52 to $79 a year.

Seventy-nine dollars will buy lots of things. A radio set, a talking machine, a very fine suit of clothes, a set of tires, the first fifteen payments on a Ford, a good-sized insurance policy.

Hard to roll your own? Not really. Give yourself a chance to learn. Have a sack of "Bull" in your pocket all the time as well as your regular cigarettes. Every time you think of smoking a cigarette pull out your sack of "Bull" and try rolling one.

By the time you've used the sack you ought to be a fair producer. And you'll certainly be a convert to the mild, delightful flavor of the unequalled cigarette that "Bull" Durham makes.

Now try it yourself and write us your experience

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

The German mark, once worth nearly a quarter in American money, fell so low last week that $1 would buy about a million.

That is, a man worth $500,000 in German money when the war started has $2 now. On what this does to bank accounts, trade and wages, it's needless to dwell. Of course, wages have risen considerably. Still for a skilled worker, $12 counts as a fair month's pay. Besides, business is so disorganized that unemployment's rife.

The point is that before the war, German money seemed as sound as American money does now. Maybe it's ridiculous to suggest that what's happened in Germany could happen in the United States, but that's what the Germans thought, too.

To reduce it to terms of practical politics, suppose somebody who favors a radical change in America's monetary system should get into power, put his plan into effect, and it didn't work out as expected?

Presidential possibilities are mentioned, from time to time, who have such schemes.

Russo-Chinese Pact?

The East, Far and Near, bulked large in last week's news.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen, Chinese revolutionary leader, took a position which may mark an epoch when he declared for a union of forces between his country and Russia.

Germany would be friendly, he predicted, at the same expressing the conviction that Turkey, Persia and Afghanistan actually would join Japan, the doctor admitted, has disappointed the later haven't abandoned hope of the Japanese yet.

He concluded by forecasting another great war soon: therefore urged that the countries, which outside pressure has forced together, come to terms among themselves at once.

Turkey Scores Victory

Turkey, in conference with the great powers at Lausanne, has forced England, France, Italy, Japan, Greece and Rumania to most of her conditions. Ex-Premier Lloyd George says it's the most humiliating treaty England ever signed. Jugo-Slavia refused but probably will have to sign later. America and Turkey are making a separate pact.

When the Turks joined the Germans in the war, the allies swore they'd drive the sultan out of Europe.

Now what?

Turkey's stronged than she's been in centuries. She escapes the war penalties the allies tried to impose. She gets Constantinople back, and eastern Thrace. Foreign troops must leave her soil. She evicts Greek civilians. She makes no promises concerning the Armenians. She ends extra territoriality within her frontiers She opens the Bosporous and Dardanelles to such shipping as she chooses to let pass. She joins the League of Nations on equal terms with everybody else.

Filipinos Are Angry

Declaring General Leonard Wood temperamentally unfitted to govern "in a democratic manner," the legislature at Manila has demanded his recall as governor-general of the Philippines.

It's a renewal of the island's campaign for self-government.

Woodrow Wilson urged it. Wood, in his first report as governor-general, expressed the opinion that the Filipinos aren't capable yet of managing their own affairs. Naturally he's disliked by the pro-independence group.

Wets And Drys

When the revenue cutter Seminole, scouting for rum runners off New York, approached uncomfortably close to the British schooner Thorndyke, outside America's 3-mile limit, the Thorndyke's captain threatened to open fire.

The Seminole commander's superiors ordered him later, if any suspected ship do this, to return the shots.

A fight on the high seas, where the liquor sleuths' jurisdiction doesn't run between a United States government vessel and one under a foreign flag would be very serious indeed.

The Seminole's commander reported the liquor fleet stretching the length of a 35-mile line, just beyond the 3 mile limit, outside New York with many countries represented.

Ending 12-Hour Day

The United States Steel Corporation is fixing to abandon the 12-hour day for its workers. Judge E. H. Gary, the corporation's chairman, recently said this couldn't be done at present, but public opinion was too much for him.

COVINGTON SCHOOL CLINIC DOING SPLENDID WORK

By Associated Press

COVINGTON, Ky., Aug. 1.—Physicians are reporting that few serious defects were discovered among thirty-five children of pre-school age who were examined at the child health conference held at the Covington school clinic. The children were accompanied by their parents, while nurses and physicians took charge of the examination. The work was done in a series of survey in the interest of the "Better Babies" movement.

Most of the ailing ones were affected with infected tonsils, and adenoid tissues, together with some cases of conjunctivitis, due to lack of care of the children's eyes.

Miss Alice Sterling, Covington public health nurse, said the mothers are responding to the campaign. The purposes of the child health conference are explained as showing that "infant mortality is much too high in Kentucky," according to Miss Sterling.

Blood passes through the heart at the rate of seven miles an hour.

London Weekly Letter

LONDON, Aug. 2.—King George of England the other day when he visited a new hospital in the east end of London named after the queen.

The king always was strong for the old-fashioned stuff and he still is.

For instance, in one hospital ward, while he chatted with a young mother, he started to rock the cradle in which was her baby. Greatly daring, the nurse in charge said reprovingly:

"We don't rock babies nowadays, your majesty."

The astonished sovereign turned upon her.

"Don't rock them? Well, please tell me why not? My children used to be rocked and I did some of the rocking."

The nurse stuck to her guns.

"Your majesty, we find that rocking is liable to make the babies ill."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed King George. "Perhaps I am an old-fashioned father, but I never heard of rocking the cradle hurting my children."

There was a pause. Then the sovereign of the kingdom turned upon the sovereign of the hospital ward and said with defiance:

"And I will rock this cradle!"

Which he proceeded to do.

Hi Johnson, U. S Senator from California, will simply have to cage his irony while he is in England. At least he mustn't spring it on British reporters. They simply don't get it.

Hi has never gotten over the interview Stanley Baldwin, then chancellor of the exchequer and at present premier, gave out when he returned to London after visiting Washington in the matter of paying off the British debt. Baldwin said something about the difficulty of understanding between American and England, because of the rural districts of the United States. That stuck in Hi's craw.

Well, the other day he was interviewed by a British reporter. He was the kind you see in British movies—notebook big as a Bible, pencil all sharpened. He took notes religiously. Finally he asked Senator Johnson where he had been in Europe.

"All over."

"Will you please name the places?"

Whereupon Johnson proceeded to catalog some dozen of cities he had seen.

"Also," drawled Johnson, putting some acid into his voice, 'also, I visited the bucolic regions and found them quite interesting."

The thrust never touched the Briton.

"Ah, quite so," he beamed at Hi. "Quite so! Very interesting, very interesting."

President Millerand of France has lately been making a little propaganda visit in Alsace. The truth is the French are finding that the people of Alsace and Lorraine, the restored provinces, are not quite so keen about being back under French rule as they were when Germans still bossed them.

High taxes—higher than the French pay—that's the answer.

In the task of making the provinces entirely French once more, every effort is being made to teach French to the children in the public schools. In one Alsatian town a little girl presented Millerand a bouquet and made him a speech in French.

"It's very nice, my child," said Millerand beamingly benevolent, "to hear you speak our beautiful French language so well. Do you like to speak French?"

"Oh, yes, Monsieur le President," said the child without the slightest hesitation or embarrassment. "I love to speak French because I can talk with my big sister without papa and mama understanding a word of what we are saying."

And speaking of the French language, a German writer has got all France simply bursting with wrath. No one knows whether Ernst Fuhrmann is really in earnest or whether it is an elaborate spoof designed to make the Gauls hopping mad. But he has just published a pretentious book with the self-explainatory title—"The French tongue is a German dialect." And he proceeds very gravely and very solemnly to prove that French is only a corrupted, a debased German.

Back in the fifth century, he says, the Gauls began to talk a German which their tongues couldn't handle properly. They twisted the German tongue. They spoke a patois. It is the French of today.

The French claim their language descends from the Latin. Rot, says Fuhrmann. The French word for woman—"femme"—doesn't come from the Latin "femina," but from the Germanic "memm," from which also comes the word "mama."

Foreigners in Shanghai, fearing Chinese will get a bad impression of the morals of western women, are advocating movie censorship.

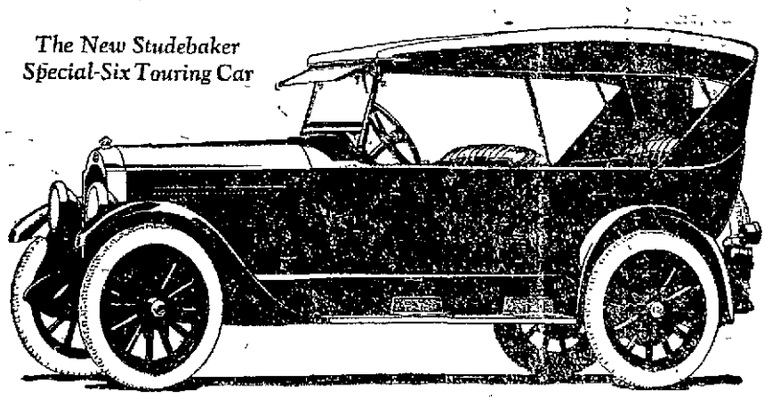
The New Studebaker Special-Six Touring Car



Before you buy any car, see the
STUDEBAKER 1924 MODELS

Studebaker presents its complete line of 1924 models, announced a week ago, with the conviction that they will increase the prestige of the name Studebaker which, for 71 years, has stood for the best in transportation, quality and value of product.

Into these 1924 cars are built every proved feature in design that makes for the comfort, convenience and safety of passengers, and many refinements that further enhance the value of a line of cars already highly perfected.

It is common knowledge in the steel industry that Studebaker uses only the highest grades of the finest steels. And the same is true of the electrical equipment, instruments, bearings, batteries, upholstery, finishing paints, tires and accessories used in Studebaker cars.

It is equally well known that Studebaker, with $90,000,000 of actual net assets, including $45,000,000 of plant facilities, is unsurpassed in ability and resources to manufacture economically and give maximum intrinsic value for a given price.

Produced under these favorable conditions, the 1924 Studebakers are distinctly the finest cars and greatest values Studebaker ever offered.

These are not careless statements. They are facts that reflect the honesty and integrity of the manufacturer and its product just as they do the truth of Studebaker advertising.

The public has placed its confidence in Studebaker by accepting these facts, supported by the performance of Studebaker cars in owners' use. That's why Studebaker sales for the past six years have increased progressively each year and sales for the first six months of 1923 of 81,880 cars broke all six months' records.

Studebaker never cheapens quality to meet competition. The name Studebaker stands for satisfaction and service.

REV. W. C. THOMPSON, BRISTOL PRINCIPAL SPEAKER AT KIWANIS CLUB LUNCHEON TODAY NOON

Tells of Great Improvement Here Last Ten Years—Club Votes to Help in Elks Convention and to Cut Weeds on Property

PETITION EXTENDED SERVICE FOR EXPRESS CO. DELIVERY

The astonishing change for the better in Middlesboro in the past ten years was stressed by the Rev W C Thompson of Bristol, Tenn., chief speaker at the Kiwanis Club luncheon today. Ten years ago, he said Middlesboro had more than twenty saloons and schools and churches were at low ebb. Now liquor, except in occasional instances, is a thing of the past, churches and schools have shown a remarkable growth and new public buildings and homes have been erected in large numbers, he said

This growth, the Rev. Thompson pointed out, was due to the character of the men of the city, organized like in the Kiwanis Club He spoke particularly of the value of organization and aspiration in community building, as well as in every thing else, closing by commending Middlesboro citizens again for the great work they were doing.

W. S. Anderson was chairman of the Kiwanis Club luncheon today. Dr. C. K. Brosheer drew the attendance prize.

Judge J. F. Bosworth spoke to the Kiwanis Club about the Elks' state convention to be held here week after next, to which four or five hundred delegates from all over the state will come He asked that the Kiwanis Club give their coopetation in entertaining these guests, urging all business men in particular to decorate their places of business on this occasion. The club voted unanimously to cooperate in this matter and to do all in their power to give the visitors a good impression of this city

Another motion carried unanimously was that every member of the Kiwanis Club set a good example by cutting all weeds on his property and by urging his neighbors to do the same thing

T. R. Hill was named as trustee for the Kiwanis convention with W. C. Stair as alternate. G. H. Talbott and P. M Parsons were appointed delegates with H. E. Verran and Jack Caldwell as alternates.

The following resolution was presented to the club and referred to the public affairs committee:

Whereas the American Railway Express Co. and the Southeastern Express Co. do not now extend their delivery service on Cumberland avenue and Gloucester avenue further west than 27th street, and

Whereas there now reside on Cumberland avenue and Gloucester avenue between 27th street and Peterboro avenue and Petersboro avenue from Cumberland avenue to Dorchester avenue, many citizens who are in need of such service, and

Whereas there will soon be improved streets including such territoty making such delivery easy and convenient to make.

Now, therefore, be it resolved that these Express Companies be requested to extend their delivry srvie so as to include the above mentioned territoty.

LOUISVILLE NAMES DELEGATES TO KIWANIS CONVENTION HERE

The following is from an account in the Louisville Times of the Louisville Kiwanis Club meeting yesterday:

Announcement was made of the appointment of J. E. Pearson, Jr., as district trustee to the district Kiwanis conference at Middlesboro September 27-28 M. F. Hoil and W. C. Cockrell were appointed delegates and J. W. Embry Ellerbe W. Carter and the Rev. Dr C. W. Welch, alternates The Kiwanians plan to send a delegation of at least three pullman loads to the conference.

Nation Today Mourns Harding's Death

BODY OF DEAD CHIEF STARTS HOME TONIGHT

To Make Trip in Same Train Which Bore Party West—Body to Lie in State in Capitol, Burial Later at Marion

MRS HARDING BEARS SHOCK HUSBAND'S DEATH BRAVELY

By Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO Aug 3—The nation today mourned the passing of its leader American people from coast to coast and from lake to gulf and in territories beyond the seas bowed their heads in grief for their president was dead

Early last evening after a day which had brought renewed hope of recovery death came suddenly and struck down Warren G Harding with a stroke of cerebral apoplexy The end came instantaneously and without even a second of warning at 7 30 o'clock There was no time to summon additional physicians no time to call members of his official family and no time for medical skill to exercise its knowledge It was all over in the twinkling of an eye and it left the nation and world shocked and in grief

Mrs Harding the constant companion of her distinguished husband was faithful to the end She was reading to him a few minutes before 7 30 o'clock when she noticed a shudder run through the man she had loved encouraged in adversity and poised in success Before she could move from her chair Harding collapsed in his bed and she rushed to the door calling for physicians to come quickly

Brigadier General Sawyer chief of the staff of physicians who had been attending the chief executive who also was in the room and two nurses who were present Miss Ruth Powderly and Miss Sue Dresser did all they could but it availed nothing The president had fought and won one victory against disease but it appeared in a more insidious form and he lost the battle

Great was the shock to all who dwell

Harding Loved By World

under the American flag and to people of many lands for Harding by reason of his office his kindly and lovable personality had become a world figure The great shock came to his wife reading by his side but she labored calm Lips She was shocked of course and at first unable to realize that she had lost the husband who had made up all the interest in her life for so many proud and happy years said General Sawyer later But there was no collapse no hysteria just a brave rally to face her sorrows and the duties devolving upon her at this hour

Mrs Harding was standing the shock well early today but whether she could stand up under the grief that bore down upon her as the sad journey back to Washington is made is another question Those who know her best say that she will

When dawn crept over the mountains and lighted up the Golden Gate this morning almost all of the arrangements were made for this trip The saddest trans continental journey in the history of the nation had to be made The trip will be started about 7 o'clock this evening and should end in Washington Tuesday morning from that the body will be in state in the rotunda of the Capitol where solemn ceremonies will be held after which the body will be taken to Marion Ohio the small Ohio city which Warren G Harding has made known around the world because there from poor and humble surroundings he struggled upward until the American people twice elected him the highest gift and paid him the greatest honor within their power to bestow

President Was Home Man

President Harding was a man who loved the home folks and if had had time to leave a parting word last night it undoubtedly would have contained instructions that he be buried in the town that knew him as Warren and where he called most everyone by their first names

The trip across the continent will be made on the same train that carried the chief executive a well happy and hopeful man to the Pacific coast

its route will take it through Kansas Ogden Cheyenne Omaha Chicago and thence to Washington It will make no stops except to change engines and for other purposes The body of the President will be borne in the same car that carried him to the west It will be accompanied by the same party that accompanied the executive when he left Washington June 20 with the addition of Attorney General Daugherty General Pershing and Mr and Mrs E T Iglehart and family of Santa Ana Calif Mrs Rawsthorne being a sister of President Harding

Naval and military honors will be paid the dead commander of the army and navy Through the whole trip two soldiers and two sailors members of the guard of honor of sixteen enlisted men and two officers will stand at attention beside the casket The body will be lighted at night and the whole train will probably be draped in black

The body of the President lay today in the room in which he suffered and died It will remain there before leaving it is to the train and just before that is done very simple and private services will be held

Harding Had Premonition of Death

By Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO Aug 3—President Harding had a premonition that his ill fortune would be fatal according to statement of Rev Ken Ivey his brother in law He said the thought of death was present in the executives mind very often since he was brought here ill Sunday and that he several times spoke of the fact Several members of his family died at about his age

HARDING'S DEATH MARKS LOSS OF GOOD FRIEND TO LINCOLN

HAZELGATE Aug 3 The officials university staff and every the passing of Lincoln Memorial University are President Harding Lincoln he was not only a friend of the work of Lincoln Memorial University but he at several times in his life made contributions of both time and money Four years ago he gave $1000 to the endowment fund and after he became president he stepped aside from his official duties to lend his personal endorsement to the endowment movement On February 12 at the Lincoln banquet of the university in Washington he delivered a memorable address in which he praised the work of the university He made an impassioned plea for the people of America to support this great Christian institution and his words were heeded by a few hundred people But it was the simple pledge of every man for the institution

Not only did the President verbally endorse the school publicly but he privately wrote at one time and another giving his approval of the work and pleading for support It is no often that an educational institution located in a secluded spot of the United States has such an influential friend to speak on its cause

INJUNCTION STOPS WORK ON STREET

West End Property Owners Charge Inferior Slag Used Present Water Pipes Too Small

Contractors on West Cumberland and Peterboro avenue have been stopped by an injunction granted at Pineville late yesterday afternoon at the request of West End property owners

The contention is that an inferior slag is being used for concrete and that the present water pipes along the street are too small Robert Kidd construction engineer was informed this morning that he could continue gutters and curbs without violating the injunction but he stated this afternoon that he had not intend to do any work on there at all until the injunction is dissolved

The petition was signed by the following property owners A C Cox W R Hawkins C G Smith Breeding and Dance by P I Breeding Ben Schultz Gibson I I Gibson I R Whalin John Howard J B Brown D Z Gibson C A Buckhorn and H E Motch

PINEVILLE ROAD OPEN TO TRAFFIC

Surfacing Treatment Will Close High way Not More Than Hour at Time Says Watkins

Traffic will not be closed on the Middlesboro road during the resurfacing treatment except for periods which Steve Watkins division engineer thinks will not exceed one hour according to announcement he made Wednesday following a conference Tuesday with Judge Bingham county judge and a committee of citizens

The conference followed protests that the contractors the Southern Oil and Tar companies of Louisville has sought to close the road day and night under the regulations and the maintenance department posted and published notices that the road would be closed indefinitely The same regulations will apply on the road over Cumberland Gap and on the Four Mile road when the surfacing crews reach that point Mr Watkins said

A tentative schedule was worked out Wednesday morning between Mr Watkins and the foreman of the surfacing work which it followed will never close the road more than an hour at a time Mr Watkins said At all other times day and night the road will be open for traffic Under this schedule the first tank of oil will leave Middlesboro at 6 o'clock each morning and reach the place where it is to be applied at approximately 7 o'clock At this time the road will be closed and half the tank 3000 gallons of oil will be spread and immediately covered with a sufficient supply of chips to protect it from passing traffic As soon as these chips have been spread traffic will be permitted to pass after which the road will be closed while the second half of the oil tank is emptied and the other road when the road will be opened again until the tank can get Middlesboro to fill and return to the job

The work starting at the road from Four Mile to the top of Cumberland mountain will be completed in 11 working days if the oil supply chips or weather Mr Watkins stated In answer to the supply Mr Watkins said by the 15th placed in order three quarters and hoped for no more delays from failure of chips to run

INSTALLATION OF NEW PRESIDENT BRIEF CEREMONY

Calvin Coolidge Sworn in By Father in Vermont Home Early Today, Leaves for Washington This Morning

ONLY FOUR WITNESSES AS COOLIDGE TAKES HIS OATH

By Associated Press

PLYMOUTH Vt, Aug 3—Calvin Coolidge sworn in a few hours before is President of the United States by his father a notary public, left for Washington this morning and will arrive there early tonight The new President took his oath in the lonely farmhouse of his father The ceremony was short and simple, in the little sitting room the President stood with his right hand upraised at one side of the table with Mrs Coolidge beside him Across the table his father read a few words of the oath 'to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution" The only other witnesses were Congressman Bile two secret service men and and Coolidge's secretary

Calvin Coolidge, twenty ninth man elected vice president in the United States and fourth from the state of Massassachusetts was born in the tiny town of Plymouth, Vt, July 4, 1872

Running in his veins by direct lineage is the blood of the Mayflower pilgrims From them he inherited a predominant Puritan respect for law and order such as characterized his conduct as governor of Massachusetts, in refusing to temporize with leaders of the Boston police strike

Silent reserved, uncommunicative almost to the point of brusqueness, he rose to national political ascendancy in 1919 when he was mentioned for the Republican nomination for president

When the nomination went to Harding Coolidge was first and there was no second in the contest for vice president

During his political life Coolidge ran for various offices state and municipal total of 17 times He won every race and only once was the fight close that occasion being in his second contest for the Massachusetts State Legislature when he received a plurality of only 63 votes

Born to live on the farm during his boyhood Coolidge occupied himself doing chores and helping out in his father's general store

He attended the little red schoolhouse at Plymouth From thtre he went to the old Black Rock River Academy at Ludlow, Vt to prepare himself to enter college He had vague hopes of reaching so high for the family farm and store were not over productive and money in the Coolidge family was scarce

In 1891 however though considerably older than the average freshman because sundry means had prevented him leaving home he entered Amherst

In 1897 he was admitted to the Massachusetts bar and began the practice of law at Northampton Following two terms as mayor of that city, two as city solicitor two in the state legislature four in the senate three as lieutenant governor and two as governor his political star shot into the national constellation

In short Coolidge typifies the New England gentleman He has probably never slapped a man on the back He is quiet to the point of taciturnity in his speech and possesses a twinkling eye and a mouth and chin that, with all his kindly smile are as firm and inflexible as Plymouth Rock itself

In 1906 he married Miss Grace Goodhue then a teacher in the Clarke School Northampton Two sons have been born to them At the time of his election as vice president, the couple lived in a modern home at Northampton for which they paid $32 a month rental

A THOUGHT

And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin; and yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.—Matt. 6:28, 29.

Beauty is Nature's coin, must not be hoarded,
But must be current, and the good thereof
Consists in mutual and partaken bliss.
—Milton.

TRIBUTE TO OUR DEAD LEADER

Today a nation mourns, because its leader is gone.

A universal wave of sorrow has swept over our country at the passing of President Harding, the kind, the gentle, the patient, the sure and sincere leader of our people. Only a high regard and a profound love exist in the hearts of his fellow countrymen, because no one has ever doubted his sincerity of purpose and his unbiased freedom of action. Supremely above everything else, President Harding was regarded a kind and true Man.

"My countrymen," the President was wont to address the throngs who gathered to hear him whenever he delivered an address. A thrill always passed through the audience because his words vibrated with a love and sincerity which made everyone feel his pulsing heart of good will and kindness. "Another McKinley," many have said, and there are indeed many parallel characteristics of the two men.

"The nation needed just such a man," some have said, after the stress of the world's greatest war and in the reconstruction of the United States' greatest crisis. No one doubts this, now that a retrospect of the last three years gives one a careful and unprejudiced survey of the steady right of conditions, and the sure and safe return to "normalcy."

"A good man" the biographers will say all over the world, and what better tribute can be paid to any man? Indeed and in truth he was a good man, with a vision of his country's needs and with a purpose to do what he could to make this a better nation. Ever since his election to the presidency, he seemed to regard his task as something sacred in which nothing of petty personalities or little grievances could enter. He went about his duties with the one idea of doing the best he could for the better interests of the people of the United States as a whole. There could not be a single person in the nation that doubted that, regardless of his personal interest or political belief.

We pause thus in our reflections, profoundly touched with sorrow, grieving that our United States has lost such a capable leader, but mingled in that sorrow is a still and silent joy that such a great and good man has been our leader and that through his leadership we have learned to love him.

A leader must be loved to be appreciated, and certainly President Harding was loved as few of our our Presidents have been loved. What more can we say, or what greater thing can we say, to express a nation's tribute?

TRANSPORTATION PART ALL SOCIAL PROBLEMS

When life was simple, problems could be considered upon their own merits, without relation to other problems. The Colonial planter ate what he raised, and cooked it over wood he chopped. If he went on a journey, it was then time enough to consider the horse, the coach, the road over which he traveled. Traveling was one thing, and living at home was another; neither affected the other.

Today we eat what others raise, and cook it and keep warm by the coal which others mine. And whether or not we ever go on a journey, the roads ....whether they be railroad or rivers or canals or dirt roads....must function to bring our food and fuel to us, and to take from us the goods we make. True, the farmer lives from his own grain and cattle, but he must yet depend on transportation to sell his product, and to bring him what he buys with the reward of that product.

Transportation can not, now, be considered as apart from any problem. It is a part of all social problems. And it is especially a part of the educational problem, since children must go from home to school, and where the school is some distance away, must ride. The good road means a good school, a well attended school, an effective school. The best school, located on a mud wallow, miscalled a road, can not instruct absent children, children who can not get to school because of mud.

The schools of this Nation can never reach their fullest development or do full justice to our children, until we have good roads everywhere.

All taxes are irritants: but the tax to build roads and keep them good, if properly spent, pays great dividends, not only in decreasing the cost of hauling, and so increasing profits, decreasing the time of journey, and so increasing the time of earning, but in decreasing the number of "absents" on children's report cards, and so increasing their school life.

LOCAL MILL SAYS RECENT WHEAT SLUMP NOT UNUSUAL

The recent slump in wheat is not so unusual, according to officials of the Lone Mountain Milling company. It merely indicates that other countries are harvesting a bumper crop this year, thus being able to export wheat at low prices to former customers of United States producers.

Local wheat was $1.15 yesterday, while that bought from Cincinnati would be three cents more, delivered here. Even men experienced in the wheat market conditions do not know just what may happen. Local buyers are rather of the opinion it will not go any lower.

The decline in the price of wheat has already had the effect of reducing the wholesale price of flour on the local market, according to the manufacturers.

Reminiscences of Bygone Days In Middlesboro and Vicinity

NUMBER TWO

A regrettable episode in the annals of Middlesboro showing primitive ideas of justice is related by A. M. Kinnaird Phoenix Life Insurance company representative. The incident occurred in the fall of 1890.

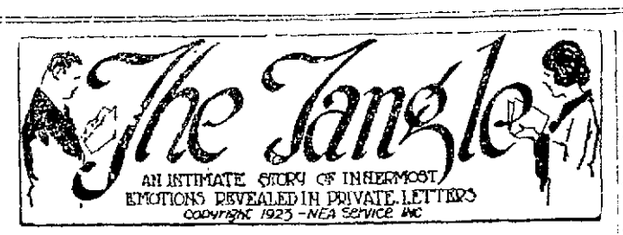
An Italian laborer whose name is not mentioned is the unfortunate hero of the incident. He was employed at Fern Lake where the waterworks dam was being constructed. Charged with some minor offense, he tried to make his escape from officers.

The officers were hot on his trail near the present site of the Bell County Lumber company. They fired on the fugitive who retaliated with his gun, wounding one of the officers in the leg.

They arrested the Italian shortly afterwards and confined him in the old jail which is still standing. That night a mob formed, the jailer and officers overpowered or intimidated and the Italian prisoner taken from them. Members of the mob, the identity of whom was a secret, hung their victim on the old wooden bridge on Twentieth street.

"I passed by the next morning and saw him hanging there," Mr. Kinnaird stated. "He was left there for several hours for the public to gaze upon."

The affair created an international stir. The Italian government demanded of the United States government that justice be done, that the lynchers or responsible persons be adequately punished. Secret service men were dispatched to Middlesboro and a case was made out against officials. There were several hearings and the matter was finally dropped.



LETTER FROM MRS. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON TO MR. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON

My dear Husband:

The queerest thing possible has happened, Joe dear, and it seems to me as it it were a direct interposition of Providence.

You remember when you were here last, we talked over the feasibility of of bringing a baby to Leslie and interesting her in it.

The night before last Leslie did not seem as well as usual. She was very restless. Kept moaning even in her sleep. Yesterday morning much to the surprise of everyone, she called as soon as she awoke for Jack. And when he came she said: "I want to go home."

Jack seemed to think that she wanted to come to our home and he sent for me poste haste. However before I was dressed and had gotten to her room, she explained to Jack that she meant their own apartment.

Of course everyone, including the doctor, was perfectly delighted to hear her make some request, and within an hour we had her back in her own bedroom, and I again had taken the apartment across the hall for myself and the nurses.

For a little time she seemed much brighter yesterday morning, although the ride and the settling of her in her home tired her greatly. About noon she went to sleep and slept until late in the afternoon. When she awoke she asked, "Where is my baby? Bring him to me."

No one dared answer. She seemed to have forgotten about her accident and her long illness and to think only that we were keeping her baby from her. She was quite delirious and only sank to sleep after the doctor had given her a narcotic.

I confess we were all very much worried. Jack thought that she would never recover her normal mind again. I found him about half past nine in his room, where he had thrown himself across his bed, sobbing.

It's a terrible thing, Joe, to see a man give up and weep. And Jack has been so strong and splendid through it all, I thought, however, at one time he, too, was losing his mind, for he seemed to think that all of Leslie's trouble was a punishment to him. I tried to tell him that he had been devotion itself to Leslie; that I would not ask my own son to be sweeter to the girl he had married than he had been to my daughter. And he made a very queer remark to me, Joe. He said, "Oh, Mother Hamilton, you do not know—you do not know."

I was sure the boy was becoming morbid over Leslie's long illness. I sat a long time with him, and once or twice I thought I heard a step and a faint moaning cry in the hallway. However I did not get up to see what was the matter, because my mind was so taken up with Jack's and Leslie's affairs.

At last we decided that we would go to the Children's home and bring Leslie a baby, for now that she was calling for her baby, there seemed nothing else to do.

This decision seemed to comfort Jack a little, and finally I persuaded him to think of undressing and going to bed. When I left him he promised to do this.

I opened the door into Leslie's room and found her sleeping quietly. The nurse said that her restlessness had all gone.

It was then that I found that I was unbelievably fatigued. It seemed to me that I could hardly walk across the hallway from the children's apartment to my own. For a moment I dreamed of her as she was a baby in my arms. The tears filled my eyes.

"Here! Here! I must not allow myself to give up," I said as I hastily walked to the doorway and opened the door into the hall.

TOMORROW—Mrs. Hamilton continues the letter—A baby at the door!

MIX!

Belong!
Don't think you're too good for the throng.
Get out with the gang, it'll teach you a heap
Of knowledge that's useful and wisdom that's deep;
Don't gaze at the world from your high narrow shell,
Don't sit by aloof while you flatter yourself
That you are of rare and superior stuff,
Too fine for a world that is "common" and "rough!"
That fashion of snobbery gets you in wrong:
Belong!

Belong!
Let's see if your spirit is strong.
Let's see how you measure along with the rest.
Let's see what your metal is, under the test:
Let's see if your qualities truly compare
With Tom, Dick, and Harry's—it's no more than fair
To show how you stand as a man in the throng!
Belong!

Belong!
Join in with the dance or the song.
Don't herd by yourself, but get into the game,
You still can be you just exactly the same;
And how can you figure or vision or plan
Unless you know something or other of Man?
It will make you wiser, it should make you strong:
Belong!

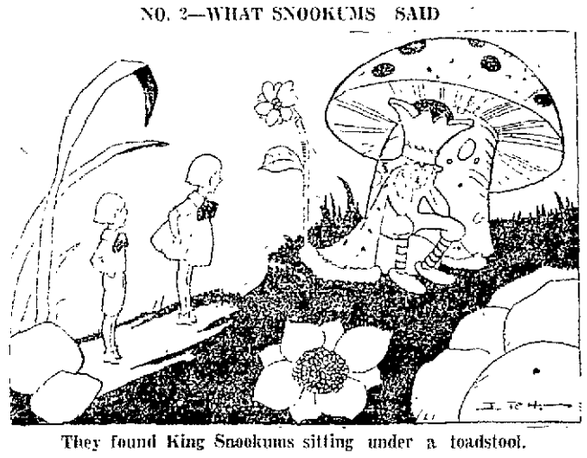
Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 2—WHAT SNOOKUMS SAID



They found King Snookums sitting under a toadstool.

"Sure, we'll help to find the lost Pee Wee!" said Nick when the Fairy Queen told the Twins that she had had a letter from Snookums, the tiny king of the Pee Wees, asking her help.

"That's fine!" nodded her majesty, smiling. "I knew you would do it. But remember, you and Nancy will have to wish yourselves as small as the Pee Wees themselves if you are going to hunt for them."

"Oh, we don't mind that!" said Nancy. "We'll have lots of fun."

"All right!" nodded the good queen. "You may start right away. Pee Wee Land is under the burdock patch just beyond Farmer Brown's sassafras garden."

"Goodby!" called Nancy.

"Goodby!" cried Nick.

And away they went on their new adventure.

Pretty soon they came to the burdock patch and without any trouble found Pee Wee Land at once.

They found King Snookums sitting under a toad-stool, looking as sad as a fallen cake. His crown was on one side of his head and his robes looked terrible.

"Oh, I'm so worried," he groaned. "I've lost 20 of my subjects since last Sunday a week!"

"We'll find them for you," cried Nick. "Don't worry any more. We are here! We're Nancy and Nick, the Twins, you know. The Fairy Queen sent us."

"You don't say so!" cried King Snookums, brightening at once. "I'm much obliged to meet you. Sit down and we'll go over everything. I'll give you a description of my missing subjects. It will help you to hunt."

Cause and Treatment of Ptomaine Poison Explained

What don you know about ptomaine poisoning the disease primarily responsible for President Hardings death?

Dr Clifford f Robinson Chicago one of America s foremost medical men makes the following explanation of ptomaine poisoning

It may be that many laymen are not informed as to the real nature of ptomaine poisoning The word ptomaine—or more properly ptomatine—is derived from the Greek meaning fallen body, or corpse Some physicians argue that the word should not be used in connection with food poisoning They claim real ptomaines form only in human bodies after death and at present are only two in number

Scientists who make a special study of such bacterial poisons are called toxicologists

Twenty five years ago many of the important laboratories in our great cities and also in the universities were eagerly carrying out the study of ptomaines This was on account of the expressed hope that science might clear up the true chemistry of bacterial poisoning Not much interest is being manifested today This is owing to the fact that ptomaines were found to be not very toxic On the other hand very poisonous ptomaines may be formed by non pathogenic bacteria What this means to the layman is that there is really comparatively little food poisoning caused by the presence of ptomaines

The poisoning from which persons suffer who are commonly said to have this trouble is contracted by eating food that is partially spoiled or decomposed This may be improperly preserved canned meats canned fish or other fish sausage cheese ice cream or milk Under different conditions the same organisms may produce totally different types of ptomaines This is an important fact when seeking to find the real cause in a patient

The symptoms show in one who has been attacked by ptomaine poisoning in a very short time The system endeavors to throw it off and dizziness is followed by severe headache chilliness and sharp abdominal pains In some cases violent vomiting occurs and the patient comes partially unconscious and sometimes in severe cases comes and death

In the treatment of ptomaine sufferers the usual treatment of getting the material out of the stomach before it can enter the system is followed Use stomach pump at once and empty the gastro intestinal tract The physician will then be careful to see that no bacterial growth is present or formed

In a mild case that is taken in time the recovery is often rapid But great care is required in more severe cases to make sure that the patient does not suffer from complications of the ptomaine This may cause serious trouble and a long sickness

SUMMARY OF LAST WEEK'S WEATHER CONDITIONS IN KY

Moderate temperature and ample sunshine were favorable for growth and moderate to heavy showers in the eastern counties furnished sufficient moisture in that section Except near the Mississippi River and it was generally light in the western half of the state In the district rains have been local and have missed large areas during the past three weeks Drought conditions are appearing in the west central counties especially where the land is thin and the surface hilly No damage from drought is reported as yet but the need for rain is urgent in such localities Pastures improved where the showers occurred but they remain short and badly dried up in the western section In the eastern half of the state corn and tobacco are in excellent condition These crops vary from fairly good to very good in the western half where lack of rain is beginning to retard growth Late corn and tobacco are not growing so well the dry sections and a considerable part of the crops remains quite small

Good seeding rains are needed to give these late pastures a vigorous start The weather was favorable for thrashing which is nearing completion in some localities In the state as a whole however considerable wheat and a large part of the oats crop remain to be thrashed Planting Irish potatoes was practically completed under favorable conditions in the eastern counties but with soil too dry for best results in the western districts Alfalfa is making a good growth for third cutting Gardens are fair tried crops are good in the eastern but are suffering for rain in the western counties Cotton in the extreme southwest continues in good condition

GENIUS IN BEAUTY

Beauty like hers is genius. Not the call
Of Homer's or of Dante's potent spell
Line —
Not Michael's lurid fire, nor the verses of time —
Is more with empassioned mysteries musical
Nay, not in springs of summer's sweet footfall
More gathered gifts exalted into life bequeaths
Than doth this sovereign face, whose love-spell breathes
Even from its shadowed contour on the wall
As many men are poets in their youth
But let one sweet string soul the wires prolong
Even though ill change the undominable song
So in likewise the envenomed veins whose tooth
Rends shallower grace with ruin void of truth
Upon this beauty's power shall wreak no wrong

MRS. CALVIN C. COOLIDGE

Mrs. Calvin C Coolidge, who, with her husband's succession to the presidency ascends to the potion of first lady of the land, is one of the most charming women, perhaps who ever held this position. Her graciousness was first particularly manifest when her husband was governor of Massachusetts and she occupied the difficult position of governor's lady in that staid state. Later when Mr. Coolidge became vice-president and the Coolidges moved to Washington, she became prominent in Washington society and has been one of the most popular matrons in that city.

Mrs. Coolidge was Miss Grace A. Goodhue, of Burlington, Vermont, before her marriage in 1905. She has two sons, John and Calvin, Jr.

BETTER BUSINESS AHEAD, SAYS GARY

Optomistic In Announcing $47,800,000 Profits of U. S. Steel In Three Months

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—From the standpoint of the manufacturer this country should be well satisfied with its present business situation, according to Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation.

There is nothing to indicate an interuption to progress and prosperity in the immediate future, Mr. Gary said yesterday after announcing that in the three months ended June 30 the company's operating profits were $47,858,-181, more than $5,000,000 in excess of unofficial estimates.

"Of course," he said, "I would not make any statement that would have a tendency to hurt business of any kind, and I would not intentionally say anything that would make anyone more hopeful of the future than the facts justify. I think I am justified in saying, however, that from the standpoint of the manufacturer we should feel very well satisfied with the present situation.

"Now, as always, things may happen to cause a relation of business because capital is timid. People hesitate to act; they postpone purchases until they can se a little more clearly in the future. No man can say clearly that he knows there may not be interruptions to our present progress in prosperity. On the other hand, as I see it, no one is justified in saying that such will occur in the immediate future."

Mr. Gary declared "this country has a wonderful position and a fine chance to carry on its affairs to the ultimate benefit and protection of our people and all our interests." if the people of the country would study and fully realize the exact situation of our affairs if they would take advantage of their opportunities, and if they would maintain their composure

SACRED PLACES IN HOLY LAND BADLY NEGLECTED

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—The sacred places of the Holy Land, the places hallowed by the human presence of the Saviour are in danger of becoming shabby and neglected. That is the word issued by Archbishop Pantelejmon, representative of the Patriarchate of Jerusalem, who has come to this country to interest the Christians of America in saving these places and maintaining them in the dignity to which their sacred associations entitle them.

The locations include the Holy Sepulchre, Bethlehem, Nazareth, the Mount of Olives, and others woven into the life of the Lord. They have been maintained in the past by the Patriarchate of Jerusalem, one of the four great branches of the Orthodox Eastern church. But today the Patriarchate faces the rapid exhaustion of its funds as a result of conditions following the world war, and the archbishop is here to co-operate with the American Committee on the Preservation of the Sacred Places in the Holy Land in making good the deficiency.

The committee is under the joint chairmanship of the Rt. Rev. William T. Manning, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of New York, and the Rev Charles S. Macfarland, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

WARREN G. HARDING

By Associated Press

Warren G. Harding brought to the Presidency an infinite patience and kindness in dealing with public questions and men which could hardly handle the problems of government without the stress and worry which had handicapped many of his predecessors

Whatever else historians may say of him there probably will be little dispute that few chief executives came to office in peace time faced problems more complex in their nature or greater in number. All international questions were unfailingly dismissed with many principal settlements of the Great War still to be effected. At home the work of reconstruction had only just begun with business depressed agriculture prostrate and unemployment general

How Mr Harding measured up to the task before him as President historians rather than the historian but his fitness is said but coming to the Presidency as he did with an personal knowledge of the processes of government acquired in his services in the Senate he was the type of man needed for the place at such a time

Preaching upon every occasion the doctrine of Americanism he set his face resolutely against Entangling Alliances While thus adhering to what he was pleased to term the principles of the founding fathers he nevertheless lent the moral assistance of the government in the efforts to build up the wounds of the world

That influence was once declared by him to be not silent though it was in the main in effecting the settlements of many vexing world questions Its chief contribution was the Washington Arms Conference at which the principal powers covenanted to limit the size of their navies and thus lift from tax worn peoples the burden of maintaining the race for naval supremacy

Along with the proffer of counsel in effecting world settlements went an insistance that American rights be recognized In polished phrase but with a directness of expression that was not to be misconstrued the world was given to understand from the very first of the Harding administration that the United States freely respecting the rights of the other nations asked for herself only that to which she was entitled in simple justice and that she could accept nothing less

While in his dealings with Congress Mr Harding preferred the role of counsellor rather than dictator he speedily removed any doubt that his gift of patience denoted any lack of purpose once he had charted a course Thus he told Congress that soldiers bonus legislation either should carry the means of financing or be postponed and when the legislators put aside his advice he promptly vetoed the bill they sent him

His tenacity of purpose was further exemplified in his continual pounding for economy in public expenditures and again in his insistence that Congress pass the merchant marine bill with a view to curtailing the continual drain which the operation of the war built commercial fleet had become upon the Treasury His greatest single effort in the field of domestic legislation was in behalf of this measure

Not infrequently Mr Harding was called upon to play the role of peace maker in governmental affairs He intervened in a dispute between Congress and the Treasury as to the form general tax revision was to take and the program he approved was carried out in the main with a reduction of more than a billion of the entire tax burden

Likewise his counsel in the matter of interests between the House and Senate on the question of American valuation in the tariff law He proposed as his choice a bill that a management under which the Tariff Commission was given authority with the approval to increase or decrease rates within prescribed limitations Upon signing the bill the President declared it constituted the greatest tariff reform in American history

Born in Ohio 1865

Mr Harding one of history prominent sons He was born at Blooming Grove Morrow County Ohio November 2 1865 the son of a country school teacher George T Harding Like most country boys he went to country school between morning and night hours and later attended college at Iberia Ohio He tried school teaching for a month but having had a smell of printers ink while sticking type for his college paper the latter drew him and the newspaper field

His family meantime had moved to Marion in an adjoining county where he obtained his first newspaper job and where his later interests were centered thereafter Mr Hardings ambition was to become a publisher and it was realized at the age of 19 when he had in the Marion star a sheriffs sale The paper was purchased under a heavy mortgage and his friends have often said that the struggles and hardships which were his in making this paper a success had much to do in fashioning his character and developing a broad patience and tolerance which were his chief characteristics

Whatever his other attainments Mr Hardings greatest pride was in his professional accomplishments and training as printer editor and publisher Not did the interests and exacting duties of his high office serve to dull his delight in potttering about a composing room On his first trip to his home after his inauguration he went to the Star office pulled off his coat rolled up his sleeves borrowed a chew of tobacco and helped make up the paper His luck charm was a printers rule carried always in a vest pocket

As his ambition had carried him into the ranks of publishers so his fancy took him into the realm of politics From the first he was an ardent partisan and his insistence upon wearing a stove pipe hat the badge of support of James G Blaine while a reporter on a Democratic newspaper brought him a sharp reprimand from his chief who held it to be inconsistent for a worker on a Democratic paper to so prominently display the symbol of his Republicanism

The future Presidents ability as a stump speaker won him early recognition from his local party leaders Marion county but was in the Democratic column and he undertook to switch it to the Republican party but his first effort at office on his party ticket resulted in defeat though he rallied in unexpected vote

Mr Hardings first political office was that of Ohio State Senator to which he was elected at the age of 34 He served two terms and later was elected Lieutenant Governor of his state In 1910 he sought the governorship but was defeated Four years later he was elected to the United States Senate where he served six years much of his time as a member of the important Foreign Relations Committee From this place he was elected to the Presidency the first Senator to be elected Chief Executive

Early in his years of political service he met William McKinley to whom his close friends have most often likened him and with whom he had in common a predominant passion for elimination of class and sectional line A friendship sprang up between the two men Mr Harding also was close in later days to Theodore Roosevelt Senators Lodge and Penrose and others high in his party councils

The President was a life long Baptist and was a trustee of his home church in Marion He also had been a member of the Elk and Moose fraternities for years and after his election as President he became a thirty second degree Mason and a Shriner

Golf was his favorite recreation but he also liked to fish although his opportunities for this sport were limited after he came to the White House He played hard and possessed the faculty of putting all his worries behind him during his recreation hours

IRA SPARKS, MODERN CRUSADER WHO TRIED TO CROSS SEAS IN PACKING CASE TAKES TO LIFEBOAT

IRA SPARKS AND HIS UNIQUE TRANSPORTATION AIDS. ABOVE, SPARKS AND THE SMALL BOAT IN WHICH HE PLANS TO SAIL TO INDIA. BELOW, THE PACKING CASE HE USED IN STOWING AWAY OUT OF SAN FRANCISCO.

HONOLULU, Aug. 2.—The indomitable spirit of the Crusader still lives.

Ira Sparks' attempt to reach the Holy Land by crossing the Pacific in a packing case resulted in his being put ashore here. Now, he plans to finish the journey in a little old lifeboat!

"Dauntless" is the name Sparks has given the craft he plans to sail from Honolulu to the Holy Land. Dauntless too is Sparks—known throughout Pacific ports as the world's strangest stowaway." Thorugh him, the eleventh and twentieth centuries join hands.

A student of the Scriptures, Sparks a native of Peru, Ind., says he received a direct command from Abraham to set forth.

Sparks lacked money for the passage. He thought of going as freight in a box.

Makes Own Box

A carpenter, Sparks had no trouble in making the box, and fitting it to hold himself, his food and his belongings. Getting on ship was a different matter—but he was dauntless.

Watching the stevedores at the docks in San Francisco, Sparks learned how some of the baggage marked "personal effects" was not stowed in the hold but segregated in another part of seagoing liners.

At the offices of a steamship line he obtained a properly filed bill of lading, made out for a specified size and weight of box. He paid the freight charge to Bombay, India.

Then Sparks engaged a drayman. Shortly before the truck arrived, Sparks, with three jugs of water, some bread, oleomargarine and canned goods and tools, a few clothes and a flashlight, climbed in his portable "stateroom". He closed the box from the inside, sniffed at the air holes he had bored through the boards and waited.

Nearly Dies

It was a tough trip to the wharves. When he was dumped off the dray, a water can toppled down on his head. Dangling on the hoisting belt, he heard the crew discussing the possibility of room in the hold. Finally the box was lowered into the silk room.

Three days in a terribly cramped position, under insanitary conditions and drinking only enough to keep alive—And then the stowaway "came up for air."

When the steamer docked here, Sparks walked to police headquarters and told his history.

While the steamship company was wondering how it could explain the undelivered "freight," Sparks went to work in Pearl Harbor. He saved his earnings and recently bought an old lifeboat.

He set it up on ways and toiled from sunrise to sunset to make it seaworthy. He decked it over, boisted a second-hand mast, patched the worn-out timbers of the brow with strips of sheet iron, hammered in brass screws and painted it with tar. The name, he declares, and he daubed the now-famous letters on the ancient craft.

He's Determined

"You're plumb crazy," skeptical old mariners are telling him. "You'll never get across in that tub."

"Give my love to 'Davy Jones,'" chimes in a wharf loafer.

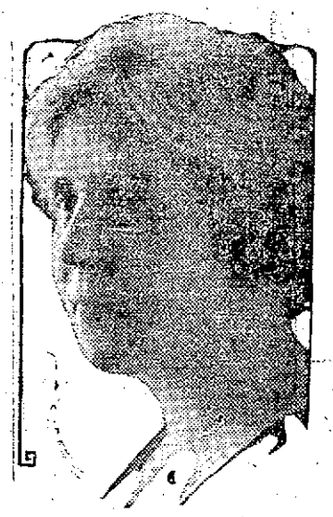
But Sparks only smiles.

He has no seismograph, no ship's clock, no modern navigating implements. But he has his itinerary planned. First, a northerly point in Hawaii, then Marshall Islands, Guam, the Philippines. On, on and on until he sails into the harbor of Bombay!

If courage and determination count for anything, he'll reach the Holy Land some day.

Dauntless the ship. And dauntless the man.

When Daughter Goes to College



F. LOUISE NARDIN

Recommendations

a girl ready for college?

The question is asked in thousands

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 1.—When is of homes along about this time each year when family conferences are being held todecide whether or not daughters should go on into higher educational institutions.

Mother may say, "I think she had better stay out for a year until she becomes more mature before going away to school, where she will make new friends."

Father probably will say, "Well, it costs a heap of money nowadays to send a girl to school, but—might as well get it over with: let's send her this year."

Answering the question at a conference of deans of women of the University of Missouri, Minnesota, Indiana, Maine, Texas Women's College and other institutions, F. Louis Nardin, dean at University of Wisconsin, says:

Up to Girl

"A girl is ready for college when she has learned how her mind works and how she can make it work better; when she has acquired a spiritual inwardness and certitude in life."

Easy going attitude assumed by parents of girls about to enter colleges and universities were scored by Dean Nardin and she was backed up by the other educational leaders.

"Because they have finished high school, parents consider that the girls are automatically prepared to take the next step and enter college. They do not think of weighing the kinds of habits, ideals and capacities for choice their daughters have acquired," said Dean Nardin.

To overcome thepresent situation, the deans recommended three remedies.

1. Students should not be allowed to discontinue the study of Latin and mathematics.

2. Pupils having high term grades should not be permitted to miss examinations.

3. Systematic accounts of how time is spent—in study, sleep and recreation—should be kept.

High school and preparatory institutions could aid in carrying out the three recommendations, it was suggested.

Elimination of Latin and mathematics from the compulsory studies in high schools would defeat every purpose of schools, it was believed. The two studies, the dean held, are essential in making students learn the power of concentration.

PLAN NEW INVESTIGATIONS TO ABATE SMOKE NUISANCE

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 3.—The smoke investigation begun by the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research of the University of Pittsburgh in 1912 and temporarily concluded in 1914, will be resumed immediately under the direction of Dr. Harry B. Meller, who has resigned as dean of the school of mines to take up the work.

Systematic surveys of smoke conditions in Pittsburgh, Chicago, Cleveland and other industrial cities will be carried on. They will be made up of comparative analysis, smoke, dust and soot contaminations; research into the manufacture of "smokeless" fuel by especially low temperature carbonization of bituminous coal, and investigation of physical means of abating the smoke nuisance, with particular reference to electrostatic precipitation of smoke.

The survey work has been started with the installation and operation of apparatus for the determination of the smoke content of the air. This phase of the investigation will be continued for a considerable period in a number of cities at the same time. Bulletins will be issued in order that the public may be informed.

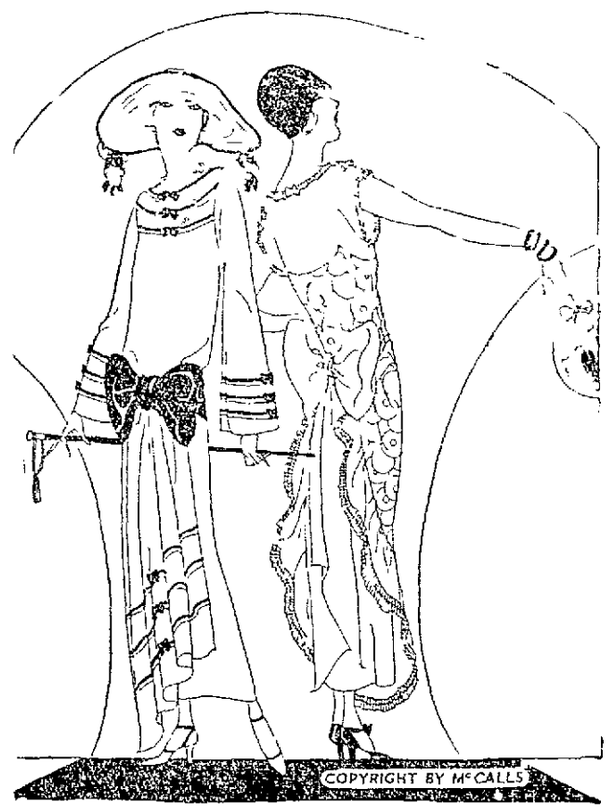
Wear Any Kind of Bow, Just So It's Smaat



There's the gown and there's the bow. For some freels one sees quite nece sary to the other if the costume is to appear in fashionable society.

A bow at the back gives the bustle silhouette a bow in the front gives the Indo Chinese effect.

When the style for bows begins the question comes up How large of what material and how to be worn.

All these seemingly important issues tions were wiped away by the appearance of all sorts of bows. Huge moire ribbons and ribbon.

Little bows at the neck. Butterfly bows on the rear bustle bows. Big ribbon bows fleeting the skirt bows of all sorts and sizes are used as trimming.

The only rule the fashionable bow adheres to is the first principle of smartness.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

String Beans

String or wax beans are an economical dish in that here is so little waste in the preparation of them. A pound of stringless string beans will serve six persons.

This recipe for beans with bacon is perhaps a bit different. The dish is very nourishing and should seem piquant enough as it is.

Beans With Bacon

One pound beans 4 slices bacon.

Snap beans and wash. Cut bacon in small pieces. Put in the sauce pan in which the beans are to be cooked. Fry out without crisping. Cut beans in short lengths and put into sauce pan with bacon fat and bacon. Do not add water. Cover closely and let simmer over a slow fire for 15 minutes. Shake the pan to prevent sticking. Add boiling water to cover and simmer for an hour. Replenish water as necessary but when beans are nearly done let water cook away. Season with pepper and serve on the dinner plates with meat and potatoes.

Beans are good cooked in combination with other vegetables.

Combination Beans

One pound string beans 2 tomatoes 1 onion 2 green peppers 2 stalks celery 1 teaspoon salt 1/8 teaspoon pepper 2 tablespoons olive oil.

Wash and snip beans. Split and cut in short lengths. Put in stew pan and cover with boiling water. Add tomatoes peeled and cut in slices. Pour boiling water over peppers and let stand five minutes. Remove the thin skin that coats the pepper. Open and take out seeds and white pith. Mince pepper celery and onion. Add to beans and cook two hours. One half hour before serving add olive oil and seasoning. Serve in sauce dishes.

Italian Beans

One pound beans 1 egg 2 tablespoons butter 1/2 cup milk 1 dessert spoon lemon juice 2 tablespoons grated cheese 1 teaspoon salt 1/8 teaspoon nutmeg 1/8 teaspoon pepper.

Wash and snip beans. Cut in long narrow strips. Put in sauce pan of boiling water salt slightly and boil 45 minutes. Drain. Melt butter and add beans. Cover and simmer until tender. Shake the pan to prevent burning. Beat the egg add cheese salt pepper and nutmeg. Add lemon juice to beans. Pour over egg mixture and stir over the fire till very hot. This is a good luncheon dish for a one dish meal.

Ices and Sherbets

Instead of baking pies and cakes during the hot summer weather why not make ices and sherbets. Every one likes a frozen dessert and it is infinitely easier for the cook to prepare than to have an oven going for an hour or more.

Fruit ices are economical and refreshing. They require little effort in the preparation and can be frozen without turning.

Raspberry Ice

One quart raspberries (red or black) 2 lemons 2 cups sugar 4 cups water.

Pick over berries wash and drain. Grate rind of lemons and squeeze juice from lemons. Add to berries. Cover with sugar and let stand an hour. Rub through sieve. Add water to juice turn into freezer and freeze.

Melon Sherbet

Two cups melon pulp 1 1/2 cups water 3/4 cup sugar 1 egg 2 tablespoons lemon juice 1 tablespoon gelatin 1/4 teaspoon salt 2 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Soften gelatin in 1 tablespoons cold water. Bring sugar and water to the boiling point and add to gelatin. Stir until dissolved. Let cool slightly and add melon pulp. When cold add lemon juice and salt. Beat white of egg till stiff and dry with powdered sugar. Fold into melon mixture. Turn into freezer and freeze.

Watermelon Ice

Three cups watermelon pulp 1 cup sugar 1 orange 1/4 teaspoon salt.

Rub melon through sieve. Add sugar juice of orange and salt. Turn into freezer and freeze.

Pineapple Sherbet

Two cups diced pineapple 2 oranges 1 lemon 2 eggs (whites) 1 cup sugar 1 tablespoon gelatin 1/8 teaspoons salt 1 1/2 cups boiling water 1/4 cup powdered sugar.

Squeeze juice from oranges and lemon. Add to pineapple with the sugar and let stand two hours. Soften gelatin in 1/4 cup cold water. Put pineapple mixture over fire and bring to the boiling point. Let simmer ten minutes. Remove from fire and stir into gelatin. Beat egg whites till stiff and dry with powdered sugar. Fold into fruit mixture and turn into freezer and freeze.

Grape Ice

Two cups water 1 cup sugar 1 cup grape juice 1 orange 1/2 lemon.

Boil sugar and water for ten minutes. Add grape juice (home made undiluted juice is best) and juice from orange and lemon. Turn into freezer and freeze.

Short Jacket

The short jacket of kashy cloth tapestry or embroidered silk or velvet is much more popular at the present moment than the sweater jacket.

Beaver Collars

Very handsome but small collars of beaver are worn on the fall top coat of camels hair or plaid wool.

Close Veils

Close veils are being worn again those with the square mesh are particularly popular. They are worn with the most severe clothes and turbans.

Long Beads

The newest beads come in extremely long strings some of them reaching to the knees. Sometimes a choker of largest beads is also worn.
